Christ Came to Save Souls

Dear Parishioners:

This Sunday is designated in the United States as Catechetical Sunday, a day to acknowledge the importance of the church's teaching ministry, and to honor those who serve the Christian community as catechists. The theme this year is "Stay with us," a reference to the two disciples on the road to Emmaus who asked Jesus to stay with them.

Last Wednesday was the 18th anniversary of the terrorist attack of 9/11. It is good for us to continue praying for an end to violence as a way of settling our differences.

Today's scriptures proclaim the familiar story of the prodigal son. If you were asked the main point of the parable, what would you say? Some believe the basic point is that everyone is a prodigal who at one time or another runs away from God. Others hold that the story's primary teaching is that God's very identity is to love and to forgive. My belief is that an important meaning of this popular parable is that the easiest place to get lost is at home.

I believe a significant focus of the parable is on the elder brother. The elder brother represents the religious people of Judaism – the practicing believers who criticized Jesus for welcoming sinners and eating with them. The younger brother stands for the sinners Jesus received. Jesus told the parable so that the scribes and Pharisees might see themselves in the attitude of the elder brother. Instead of rejoicing with his father over the younger brother's return, the older brother reacted in self-righteous indignation.

The easiest place to get lost is at home – because when you are at home all the time, it is easy to forget how good home is. Home may not look like much when you leave on vacation. But when you are returning home, it looks like heaven on earth. It's your own bed, your own shower, your own pillow.

The elder brother felt he deserved to be home. He was earning his keep. But home is where you live by grace. Home is not a business arrangement where you earn your place. In a similar way, there is no seniority in the kingdom of God. Everyone comes in a sinner, and everyone stays by grace.

Even though the elder brother was home all the time, he confused physical proximity with spiritual intimacy. The striking implication of the parable is that you can be physically close to others and not be with them at all. Isn't it true that the world can be a kaleidoscope of attractions and unrelenting adrenalin while people simultaneously feel lonely and estranged from one another?

All three readings today form a unified whole with one message: repentance and conversion. In the reading from Exodus, the people are given yet one more chance to turn to the Lord, thanks to the prayer of Moses. In the letter to Timothy, Paul thanks God for the mercy he received – recognizing that "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners." All three Gospel parables urge people to embrace God's saving mercy.

Think of people you know who are alienated from the church. Suppose someone returned after a long absence. Would they find a caring community? Would they feel that things had changed? The challenge is for everyone to feel welcome at church as at home.

ST. IGNATIUS SCHOOL

*Love consists in sharing what one has and what one is with those one loves.
- St. Ignatius of Loyola*

Kids for Love looks like this: When Roxy and Derek, 8th grade, finished their lunch this week, they went over to the kindergarten table, introduced themselves and walked their new friends to the playground. It is poignant to see this connection at the start of each year as our junior high students take pride in shepherding the littlest members in the K-8 program and the kindergartners behold their big friends with awe. This is Ignatian and Holy Names. This is Kids for Love...and already the kids are living it beautifully.

Thank you to all of those who joined us for the commissioning mass on Wednesday and Back to School Night last Thursday. Thank you, especially, to JoAnn Grubb and the St. Ignatius School Foundation who presented a check for $105,000 to support tuition assistance, preschool expansion and our new playground fund. We are so grateful for your on-going commitment. Thank you!

We are excited to welcome representatives from all of our Catholic High Schools next week. Over the last 10 years, an average of 87% of St. Ignatius graduates go on to Catholic High School. Truly, they are our future. Blessings on your week!
